Letters: Real reform of Animal Services

Gretchen Lieff, Santa Barbara

June 5, 2016 5:13 AM

There is no chance that any real reform of Santa Barbara County Animal Services can happen until there is an overhaul of the entire Animal Services department. The so-called "Animal Oversight Committee" is purely advisory and has no oversight authority whatsoever. The only way there will ever be any meaningful change is if the Board of Supervisors creates a citizens' animal welfare commission. Animal Services must no longer come under the jurisdiction of the county Department of Health. Jan Glick, Takashi Wada and Susan Klein-Rothschild should be removed from any further decision making of animal matters.
